CREATIVE TUTORS 4 KIDS FILLS GAPS LEFT BY RECENT LEGISLATION

Individualized instruction especially supports student athletes

Plano, Texas (April 16, 2005) Creative Tutors 4 Kids' Plano franchise, owned by Janice M. Coltrain-Sapp, is offering programs that support families concerned about their child's level of education. House Bill 2, recently passed in the Texas Legislature's 79th Regular Session, offers benefits to schools, but mandates new programs and spending. This is expected to create budget deficits, eroding schools' ability to provide services to individual students.

In addition, new expectations that 50% of student athletes will graduate compared to the current 20%, beg innovative services to generate major improvement in athlete academic performance.

Creative Tutors 4 Kids fills the gap by offering individualized instruction to students with a broad range of educational needs. Some students are academically gifted, but are not challenged enough by public school offerings. Other students struggle with math, science or language arts. Still other students benefit from support with homework or special projects. Athletes with heavy practice schedules need to learn around athletic events.

Students of all ages are at a broad range of academic levels in different subjects. In addition, there are as many styles of learning as there are students. For maximum potential from a learning experience, it is important to teach not only the appropriate material, but to teach it in the way a student learns.

Creative Tutors 4 Kids matches the profile of a student to the resources of an instructor. Matching in this way gives the greatest opportunity for success in a tutoring experience. In addition, the tutor comes to the student, providing a comfortable, familiar environment for learning and a convenient arrangement for overworked parents.

Creative Tutors 4 Kids Plano is the Plano franchise of Creative Tutors 4 Kids International, Inc.
